All .nl registrants whose addresses are outside the Netherlands automatically use our address as a 'domicile address'. That's an address where a bailiff can formally deliver official documents (e.g. a summons) to the registrant. The address is: registrant XYZ, C/o SIDN, Meander 501, 6825 MD, Arnhem, The Netherlands. We forward any official documents that are formally delivered to the registrant at our address. We don't forward other post.

If a bailiff delivers an official document to our address, this is what we do:

1. We check that the registrant does actually use our address as a domicile address. If they don't, we send the document back to the bailiff.
2. If they do, we forward the document:
Within three working days
 - Twice to the registrant's admin-c e-mail address
 - Once to your admin-c e-mail address
 - Twice to your admin-c e-mail address
 - Once to your registrar's admin-c e-mail address
 - By registered post to the registrant's postal address

We don't do anything besides forward any documents we receive. We aren't responsible for ensuring that the registrant receives anything we forward.
